"I am anxious to have the people feel that they can be directly reresented here for the purpose of complaints, grievances and recommendations. At present there seems to be a feeling that the island is ruled by one-man power, which is a relic of the Spanish system. I desire to learn, so far as possible, the views of the people; and I, therefore, instruct the council to inform the mayors that they may send here on or before December 19 two delegates from each mayoralty, one liberal and one radical, to be chosen by the respective municipal councils.

In the case of a town where the two political parties do not exist, or where one does not, its mayor and council may choose non-partisans in their best discretion. The object is to enable me to come into direct contact with the people. I reserve to myself absolute right to act as I see fit on the recommendations of such delegates and shall not be influenced regarding them by men now in office. I shall listen to the voice of the people through their delegates and shall examine and consider what they lay before me, particularly the complaint that an unnecessary number of officers are now connected with the various councils."

The new construction is for three battle ships of 13,500 tons and great steaming radius; three 12,000 ton armored ernisers; three 6,000 ton armored cruisers, and six protected cruisers of 2,500 tons each, for service in the waters around our insular possessions. These were recommended by the bureau of construction, and while the committee had not finally acted upon the matter the fact that it will do so has been very clearly indicated at the two informal meetings of the committee held this week.
